

Design

EXERCISES THAT WE DIG!

Red is frequently used as a symbol of guilt, sin, anger, lust and love and after seeing these design exercises (done in red) we can safely say that we're suffering from the full range of emotions because we can't have 'em—at least not yet.

THE BLOOD TABLE

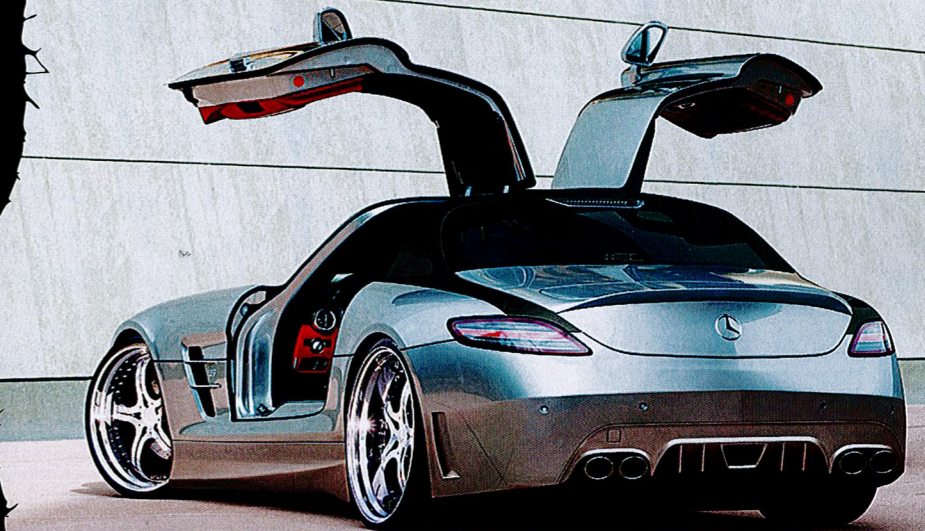

When we first saw this table we were blown away with the concept and deemed it a necessary addition to Heavy Hitters Magazine. The blood table will change the way you see furniture design and applies a gruesome – yet artistic twist – that's as thrilling as it is unique. So when we asked designer, John Nouanesing, what his inspiration was behind the creation of his infamous blood table he said, "The table speaks about love, passion and pain. It was designed to be something that demands to be loved as it is suffering of that." Unfortunately the table is still a prototype, but John and his staff are working hard for a full production run that'll be ready sometime next year. Price? TBA...but it would only be appropriate that it cost you an arm and a leg.

Source: www.johnnouanesing.fr

MEC DESIGN SLS

The soon to be released Mercedes Benz SLS AMG is destined to be the next hot platform to customize and MEC Design is hot on it's tail. MEC – a German tuning house (that's really based out of Germany) has been working on a design exercise that has encapsulated a variety of styling options for the Gullwing inspired beast. From large wheels, serious drops, to aero kit options, MEC is getting ready to take the beauty of this car to a whole other level and we're excited.

Source: mecdesign.de

MERCEDES BENZ SLS AMG

